

Border Conference Breaks Up in Disagreement--Wilson to Decide Issue of Intervention

CABINET TAKES UP CRISIS

Officials are extremely bitter in their characterization of the Carranza attitude. It is known that General Obregon was willing to make concessions to meet the views of the United States, but he was overruled by the acting President.

INTERVENTION LOOMS.

Although the official word from the White House was that the efforts to reach an understanding will be continued through diplomatic channels, officials very frankly said that Carranza was willing to make concessions to meet the views of the United States, but he was overruled by the acting President.

The cabinet considered the current situation again today. It is understood that President Wilson and Secretary of State Lansing are not yet willing to admit that diplomatic will not solve the situation.

MAY CALL ARMY OF 250,000.

If the situation is found to call for intervention, however, the President will go before Congress and place before it a bill for the raising of an army of 250,000 men.

New Department officials assumed that General Funston had notified Carranza of the failure of the El Paso conference. They believed he would take this action as a preliminary measure to prepare general Pershing for any aggressive movement of Carranza troops that might follow.

Army officers believed that General Pershing had concentrated his forces to meet just such an eventuality. They were not in the least surprised when Carranza's real attitude was made known. They were not surprised when Carranza's real attitude was made known. They were not surprised when Carranza's real attitude was made known.

SECRET ORDERS TO CONSOLE.

It was learned that the State Department a week ago sent secret orders to consuls in Mexico to be ready to act quickly.

An additional insight was thrown on the comprehensive nature of the preparations for action when it was learned that the National Guard of Texas, Arizona and New Mexico, together with the regular army, were quartered in the border, were quartered in the border, were quartered in the border.

The kindness of the Texas police and the fact that they can exist on the dry grass with little other subsistence make them peculiarly adaptable for the work often on the border or in Mexico.

GETTING AMERICANS OUT.

Evidence of the increased activity of State Department officials in inducing Americans to come out of Mexico were regarded as significant.

Two months ago the State Department telegraphed instructions to consular officers to induce Americans to leave Mexico, since they "probably more than 1000 have left, leaving some 1500 there. These instructions have been reiterated, and a general exodus is now expected.

Funston Asks For Eastern Cavalry

By WALLACE E. SMITH, International News Service Staff Correspondent.

El Paso, Tex., May 12.—The cavalry regiments of the National Guard in New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania and Illinois will be requisitioned for service on the border immediately if the recommendations of General Funston are approved by the War Department.

General Funston declared that troops of the regular army or any one of them had already received orders to mobilize, but he would like to have them.

It has been demonstrated that we must have mounted men to do the work down here. Aside from the task to be accomplished in Mexico, we have to look to the protection over a distance longer than from New York City to St. Louis.

In this connection the purchase of the infantry has been recommended. Where the horses are available they will be distributed to the infantry assigned to patrol duty.

AMERICAN FARMER KILLED.

A dispatch from Brownsville states that Chris Bayles, an American farmer, was shot and killed a short distance from his home near Mercedes, Tex., by a band of four or five Mexicans, who succeeded in escaping, probably to the Mexican side of the Rio Grande.

MARATHONERS RUSH.

Messages from Marathon report that Mexicans again crossed into American territory and attacked civilians and soldiers near that point.

The raiders made four miles north of Buquillas, at an old terminal station and directly behind Major Lacerda's column. After a short skirmish the bandits fled.

EXPRESSING IS STOPPED.

Dispatches from Corpus Christi, state that two more arrests were made in the investigation of a planned plot for a Mexican, arranged in South Texas and simultaneous similar disturbances in Arizona and New Mexico.

Colonel Valenzuela, editor of a Mexican paper at Kingville, and Victoriano Pineda, a merchant, were taken into custody by officers of the Department of Justice.

Colonel Morris said to be a former Villa officer, who was arrested, is in jail at Kingville. The Federal officers who arrested him said Morris would be charged with conspiracy and sedition in a late active role in the alleged plot.

Other arrests are expected, as it is known other persons have been under surveillance.

The springing, in which Colonel Morris is said to be the leader, was originally set, it is said, for May 5, but this postponed until May 12 and further postponed because of lack of funds.

According to agents of the Department of Justice, Morris was said to have 1000 followers scattered through the three states. It was planned to cut telephone and telegraph lines, destroy railroads and attempt to capture certain towns.

Colonel Sibley Tells of Ambush

By JOSEPH TIMMONS.

Marathon, Tex., May 12.—Colonel W. F. Sibley, commanding the second positive expedition, narrowly escaped an attack by Mexicans as he approached Buquillas to assume command of the troops at the river. His posted forward, dead Man Gray had an hour after burning bushes had fired on Major Lacerda's chauffeur and three civilians.

Major Lacerda's troops are back on the American side of the river, but are shooting into Mexico, something along the road taken by the bandits, who are coming north with four men.

All of these except Major Lacerda's troops are in the hands of the four prisoners were also Spring Creek.

Colonel Macomber's two troops and the machine gun company have reached Buquillas. Messengers said it was the intention to cross the river with full command and take up the real pursuit.

But Sibley, J. M. Henderson, Jr., and Cornelius Culpeper, the three civilians first seen, with chauffeur Howard, reached Marathon with the rest of the troops to the encounter. They went at once to Captain John J. Chambers, quartermaster, to have been sent, Captain Chambers showed evidence of deep concern, and immediately began to arrange for guards to go out with his motor truck.

That Colonel Sibley was to go to Buquillas was known in advance to the Mexicans here. Border men expected the conviction that this fact had been carried or signaled to the river, and that the raiders were being in ambush for the commander of the expedition.

STORY OF THE AMBUSH.

Sibley is the owner of a cattle ranch near Bone Springs. Henderson and Culpeper are well-known residents of Buquillas.

erotic of Marathon who went with the sheriff's posse Sunday.

Henderson gives this account of the raid:

Major Lacerda's chauffeur, Howard, left Buquillas to carry a message to Colonel Sibley, who was on the road to the river. Half an hour later Mr. Buttrill, Sibley and myself started to Marathon.

About fourteen miles up we met Howard. He said that near miles further along the road Mexican hiding in the canyon had fired on him. He returned the fire with his automatic, but the distance was too great, and he turned his car and came back for help.

As he told me this I saw four horses on a hillside a mile away. I took a pair of field glasses and saw that they were saddled, but I saw no men with them. It was like an ambush. I saw that the car was not running well and went on to look.

Culpeper, who rode Howard's car, and Buttrill and I went ahead. We had gotten back through Dead Man trap, in the horsehouse every body, when we saw four or five horses in the canyon to the left. They were not saddled. I had stopped to take a look at them. They were horses when a shot was fired at us from the canyon.

A second later Howard saw a head pop up about 100 yards away from where the shot was fired. We had gotten back through Dead Man trap, in the horsehouse every body, when we saw four or five horses in the canyon to the left. They were not saddled. I had stopped to take a look at them. If he had held his fire with his gun I could have killed that bandit.

The Mexicans got away, and we drove fast to camp. We took five soldiers in the cars and hurried back to where Colonel Sibley.

First Photographs of the Irish Revolt to Be Published in America

The first batch of Sinn Féin volunteers from Dublin, being marched under military guard to the jail at Kinsford, England, after having been held in Dublin.

Professor John MacNeill, president of the Sinn Féin Volunteers, accounted for war, marching in the streets of Dublin at the head of a band of rebels.

TWO MORE IN IRELAND SENTENCED TO DEATH

out of Dublin," he cried, "you would not pursue a more insane policy. You are letting loose a river of blood between two races which, after three hundred years of hatred we had nearly succeeded in bringing together."

You are seeking out our whole life work in a sea of blood," he continued. "If military rule is to be continued in Ireland, the government had better get ready 100,000 men to garrison the country."

SEEK DEATH VS. HATE

The most dangerous factor in Ireland's situation since the revolution was that the punishment of the rebels would cause a reaction of sympathy among the Irish people. This threatened danger appears to be fast disappearing.

Dillon at one point said:

My son, seventeen and one-half years of age, applied for a military pass to go to Kinsford. He was asked his name and college and was promptly refused by a British officer, who refused the pass.

This son had asked permission on his seventeenth birthday to join the British army. I gave him leave to enlist when he became eighteen.

He will never join it now, and there are tens of thousands of others in similar cases.

After all, it is our country, although you look upon it as a part of the empire, which you can trample into dust without consideration.

ASSEMBLY TO INVESTIGATE

In a fiery, impassioned speech, the Irish leader introduced the proposed resolution, calling for a statement of the government's intention regarding Ireland. It was voted down, but not before the House had several times been plunged into an uproar.

Dillon's speech created a sensation. Many lines he interrupted, and he was shouted.

It is the Ulster members had not been so done they could have had many of the revolutionaries fighting for them in the British army, men who were misled into revolution, but of whose courage I am proud.

Cries of "hush" echoed through the chamber.

CALES IT FALSEHOOD

"Who stopped them?" demanded Dillon.

"You did," came from a number of Unionist members.

"That is an infamous falsehood," retorted Dillon, who was continuing.

At present everything conceivable is being done to spread disaffection throughout Ireland. Lynch, Clare and Mayo counties were not in a disturbed condition, and their reward was the sending down of troops to make arrests.

In my opinion the present government of Ireland is largely in the hands of the Dublin clubs.

What is the use of telling me that the executive authorities acted in close consultation with the civil executive officers of the Irish government? Who are those officers? There are none. They have all disappeared.

There is no government in Ireland except the Dublin and the Dublin clubs. Everybody in Dublin knows that.

This is more than ten years ago. It is not surprising boys in their efforts to try to get money evidence against those whom they suspect of disloyalty.

DISCLOSES BRITISH ACTS

In one case a boy of fifteen years was ordered to give testimony. He said "I won't." The officer said "You'll be shot." "Shoot away," he answered.

Then they blindfolded the boy and allowed him to listen to the clicks of their rifles. When he will refused to give them the evidence they desired, they tore the bandages from his eyes and sent him home.

Such acts are damnable and intolerable. Prior to the beginning of the rebellion, Harold J. Tennant, parliamentary under secretary of war, admitted that fourteen persons had been executed in Ireland since the revolution.

This is more than the number definitely known to have been shot, and the identity of the victims was a matter of much speculation.

Tennant also stated that seventy-three persons have received sentences of penal servitude and six supplies are under sentence of death, and two have been deported to England to await trial.

HINTS AS TO EXECUTIONS

In closing, Dillon referred to the execution of Thomas Kent, and declared it looked as if there was a roving commission to carry out these horrible executions.

Mr. Tennant admits there have been fourteen persons executed since the revolution. He said:

"What are the people to believe? It is all wonder we view the matter with greatest concern. How are we to know that other executions have not taken place and the facts withheld? Horrible rumors are current in Dublin, and they are embittering the population."

Dillon declared that Premier Asquith had introduced a bill providing for the true situation. He said:

"It is an act of the government, the authorities responsible for the execution of P. Sheehy Keefe. Yet they were to blame, for he was shot on April 25, and they did not know of it until May 10."

How could anyone blame the executioners? He said that he had seen the "good figure" they had made, they were finally rejected. Dillon's last words were:

"They made a good, clean fight, but their lives were misused they were."

MARKS STINGING RETORT

Some one interrupted to say that despite the "good figure" they had made, they were finally rejected. Dillon's last words were:

"They made a good, clean fight, but their lives were misused they were."

Yes, but it would be damned good thing if your name was able to get up as good a name as mine, and your men were armed with machine guns and artillery.

But of the men and women there are only four or five men where there were once ten, and the whole country is under martial law, and there is absolutely no trace of civil administration.

Those who were loyal were humiliated. Men were arrested and executed with death. Thousands of them were actually placed against a wall in order to persuade them to become rebels. Asquith closed his reply by assuming that he would leave for Dublin, as he felt it to be his duty to do. He then, he explained, would

Irish Executions Are Denounced by Hibernians

At a meeting of the State Board of the Ancient Order of Hibernians of Massachusetts, held in Lowell, the following resolutions were unanimously adopted:

Resolved, That we, the State Board of the Ancient Order of Hibernians, representing 30,000 American citizens, denounce the brutal murder of the men of our race who, by their splendid fight, made Ireland an everlasting side, have aroused the admiration of every lover of liberty.

What explanation can be given of the different kinds of justice meted out to the men of our race who, by their splendid fight, made Ireland an everlasting side, have aroused the admiration of every lover of liberty.

Are your children pounding away their health on concrete playgrounds and city streets?

WITHIN the experience of us all, the sidewalk has changed from a soft to a hard one. Where the children of twenty-five years ago played on soft turf, your children are now pounding away their health in concrete yards and city streets.

Already a beginning has been made in the routine examination of the school children of New York City. Of 2,059 boys at one well known high school, 107, or 5.2 per cent, had weak feet, and 260, or 12.6 per cent, actually had broken arches. In 1914, another high school showed 30 per cent of the boys to have the worst form of flat foot, as against 18.8 per cent in 1908. Among the elementary schools the percentages were even higher.

How the foot breaks down In a soft walk, the foot shapes the ground; on unyielding concrete, the pavement shapes the foot.

The continual pounding with the whole weight of the body on hard, unyielding concrete, weakens and depresses the natural arches or springs of the foot—elasticity of step is lost, and the foot becomes deformed.

The far reaching effects The constant strain on the arches, particularly in the case of children, produces tenderness and pains throughout the foot, and muscles of the leg. As the child grows older, there is a tendency to round shoulders, pallor and loss of appetite. Children who have weak feet do not appear to be as active as their fellows, they do not want to play or walk, and often complain of being very tired.

Protect your children's health Don't let your children pound away their health on concrete playgrounds and city streets. Save their systems from the jolts and jars that tend to break down health. Put heels of new, live rubber on their shoes—they act as easy, springy cushions between the heels and hard concrete pavements. Many private schools now compel their children to wear rubber heels, because they save young nerves and prevent the usual clatter of children's shoes.

Be sure to ask for O'Sullivan's, and avoid the disappointment of substitutes. In black, white or tan; for even, women and children; 50 cents attached. Most good shoe-dealers now sell last styles already O'Sullivanized.

Executions Called 'Examples' by French

By International News Service. London, May 12.—Sir John French, commander-in-chief of the home forces, issued the following statement regarding conditions in Ireland:

"During the recent events, thirty-six men were killed and 211 wounded, and are missing."

Edward de Valera and Thomas Ashe, who were sentenced to death, but whose sentences were commuted to penal servitude for life, were also mentioned.

The court-martials of the Dublin rebels have begun full force, and the sentences are now being read.

It is feared that too many examples will be sufficient as a deterrent to inspire the rebels.

"At present it is wrong to report that we have abandoned Cambridge, as some newspapers have erroneously stated."

Everyone Should Drink Hot Water in the Morning

Wash away all the stomach, liver, and bowel poisons before breakfast.

To feel your best day in and day out, to feel clean inside, to be able to eat your tongue and sicken your breath or roll your head; no constipation, bilious attacks, sick headache, colds, rheumatism or anything else, would surprise you must battle on the inside like you battle outside. This is vastly more important, because the skin pores do not absorb impurities into the blood, while the bowel pores do, says a well-known physician.

To keep these poisons and toxins well fused from the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels, drink before breakfast each day a glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it. This will cleanse, purify and freshen the entire alimentary tract, before getting more food into the stomach.

Get a quarter pound of limestone phosphate from your pharmacist. It is inexpensive and almost tasteless, except a sourish twinge which is not unpleasant. Drink phosphate hot water every morning to rid your system of these vile poisons and toxins; also to prevent their formation.

To feel like young folks feel; like you felt before your blood, nerves and muscles became saturated with an accumulation of body poisons, begin this treatment and above all, keep it up. As soap and hot water act on the skin, cleansing, sweetening and purifying, so limestone phosphate and hot water before breakfast, act on the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels.—Advertisement.

Use Coconut Oil For Washing Hair

If you want to keep your hair in good condition, be careful what you wash it with.

Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and is very harmful. Just plain mulsified coconut oil (which is pure and entirely greaseless) is much better than the most expensive soap or anything else you can use for shampooing, as this can't possibly injure the hair.

Simply moisten your hair with water and rub it in. One or two teaspoonfuls will make an abundance of rich, creamy lather, and cleanses the hair and scalp thoroughly. The lather rinses out easily, and removes every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and greasy oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves it soft and silky, bright, glossy and easy to manage.

You can get mulsified coconut oil at most any drug store. It is very cheap, and a few ounces is enough to last everyone in the family for weeks.—Advertisement.

THE AMERICAN TOBACCO COMPANY

may's truly to America, is published by the Wireless Press under a license. The Wireless Press states that the following remarks by the Chancellor may be accepted as unquestionably authentic:

"I have said before that we must not let our feelings rule. I repeat that. With regard to our dispute with America our self-respect was wounded by the aggressive wording of the American note to Germany. Our feelings urge us to reject the intervention with our legitimate methods of warfare and tell America to mind her own business; but considerations of policy compel us to subordinate patriotic sentiment to patriotic reason.

"We must be guided, however, not by our feelings but by the coolest judgment."

HAS ONLY ONE AIM.

"We have one aim and one duty, namely, to win the war; therefore any policy which endangers our victory must be avoided. The overwhelming majority of expert opinion regards a rupture of relations with America as a great peril."

"A great mistake has been committed in overrating the value of submarine campaigns against England. The submarine has no local effect in the probability of reducing England to starvation and ruin for a short time. It is true that these instruments can inflict a frightful amount of damage, but this damage would be insufficient to outweigh the danger to ourselves of America's hostility."

It is folly to underestimate the consequences of a rupture with America, nor should we risk our America's equality. Our information leads us to believe that other nations might follow America's lead."

WEIGHED EVERY FACTOR.

"The Imperial Government has weighed every factor and is convinced of the necessity of avoiding a breach with America."

"These are the hard facts of the present situation. We have weighed a reply such as may reserve future liberty of action. If the situation changes, we may cancel our concessions to America and resume unrestricted submarine operations, but for the present we must become more strict and pursue the policy most conducive to final victory over all our enemies."

METHODIST CONFERENCE TO OMIT PEACE RESOLUTION

By International News Service.
Savannah, N. Y., May 12.—The Methodist general conference will not go on record as advocating the cessation of the European war, irrespective of the hopes of the delegates that bloodshed will soon cease. No resolution stating that it is the sense of the conference that steps be taken toward arbitration, therefore, is likely to be entertained seriously, should one be introduced, which appears unlikely.

Dr. Edmund Locke of Kansas, a delegate in an interview today declared that peace resolutions would find few supporters, and that he doubted if any such resolution would be presented. Dr. Locke is one of the secretaries of the conference. He said that the present conference had to do the vital affairs of the Methodist Episcopal Church and that there was much business to transact.

The all-absorbing topic among the delegates relates to the question of new bishops. The list of candidates is now of some length, containing nearly a dozen names.

The candidacy of Dr. Matthew S. Hughes, chairman of the delegation from Southern California, is looking up. Dr. Hughes is pastor of the largest Methodist Episcopal church of Pasadena.

Another candidate who is being strongly backed for bishop is Dr. F. C. Kennedy of Syracuse. The delegates from northern New York are, it is said, solidly behind him.

TO INTEREST YOUNG FOLKS.
A propaganda to incite the young members of the Methodist Episcopal church toward a more concerted movement in Methodism, was inaugurated today. The delegates adopted resolutions appointing a committee of ten, five from the Epworth League and five from the Sunday school committee to devise methods to interest the young Methodists in their religion.

Less condemnation and more appreciation of the boys and girls of the church was urged. The delegates suggested that instead of railing against too much amusement, better results would likely follow were matters connected with the church to be made more attractive.

The resolution offered by Alexander C. Stephens of St. Paul pointed out that there are 12,000 young Methodists who would be affected by the proposed plan of the church.

CALL WORLD WIDE CALL.
Two important committees are meeting today, both of which are discussing the amusement problem. They are the committee on amusements and evils and the committee on the church respectively.

For the first time during the conference there was a roll call of the world. It took forty minutes to read off the names, of whom was present from practically every civilized quarter of the globe.

Latest War Bulletins

The German attacks at Verdun continued today without pause; and where no infantry attacks were driven home, the bombardment was of the utmost intensity.

The line from Avocour zig-zagging in a general westerly direction to Vaux is the scene of almost continuous fighting; for where the Germans do not attack, the French do; or if by chance infantry on both sides is given a rest, the artillery scourges the hill-sides with shells.

The significance of the fighting at Verdun must continue a puzzle; but an interesting suggestion comes from an American expert of high standing. He states as a fact known to him that when the German attack began, Joffre and the French war chiefs decided to abandon Verdun because it was difficult of defence and of no more importance than any corresponding stretch of territory.

But this decision was overruled, the expert says, by French statesmen on the ground of political effect.

The same man says the Germans knew the French generals planned to abandon Verdun, that they attacked there because it was the most vulnerable point on the line and in the confident expectation that it would be abandoned.

Instead of being abandoned, it has become the greatest battleground in history, where both sides have fought with unexampled devotion and tenacity, and where French and Germans must have learned a mutual respect which would do much to wipe out the hatred and ferocity which ruled at the beginning of the war.

Reports come of German preparations for a land and sea attack on Riga.

The Turks in the Caucasus report successes; while Petrograd says the Turks have been reinforced and are stiffening their resistance.

A Second Great Agricultural Bill to Pass

THE bill before Congress which is designed to develop and apply the parcel post to the establishment of a direct trade between the producer and consumer, farmer and the home, is a sound bill and full of promise to the agricultural classes and to the household economy of the republic.

It is to be hoped that the Sixty-fourth Congress will examine it promptly and pass it speedily.

It is understood that all living, rational human beings are in favor of economic benefits. The spirit of the age is to discover and adapt these economic benefits to the convenience and welfare of all the people. Thoughtful men, on and off the farms of America, are fully convinced that the utilization of an enlarged parcel post is one of the most helpful things that can be done for the whole country through the agricultural masses at this time.

It is proposed to bring about this direct trade between the producer and the consumer by adapting and using the labor-saving, time-saving and the money-saving methods now operative in the great mail order houses all through the medium of the parcel post service of the postoffice.

The mail order business is now one of the best-vindicated and most prosperous phases of the American system of trade. The mail order houses of this country were born some forty years ago. Under crude and primitive methods they struggled along for a foothold with from twenty-five to fifty thousand dollars a year as a high-water mark of business volume. Today, due to the operation of their scientifically developed "tags" and "forms" and "blanks," each of them transacts a business whose volume reaches over one hundred millions of dollars a year. The amazing vindication of the system which they have put into effect has naturally inspired the wise and foreseeing statesmen of all parties to learn from these great establishments how to enrich and elevate the American farmer and thereby to convenience and prosper the American household, and inevitably to lower the cost of living throughout the country by eliminating the monopolists and the middlemen and enable the farmer to trade directly with his customers in the home.

It is now established in the testimony of the soundest business men that under methods of efficiency similar to those used by the great mail order houses, and with the magnificent facilities afforded by the parcel post service of today, and the greater service which can logically and certainly be developed out of the parcel post, there will grow a farmer-to-consumer and consumer-to-farmer business of infinitely greater volume and beneficence than the business of all the mail order houses in the republic over and over again.

The men behind this wise and far-seeing economic movement have had this matter up for prudent sifting and national discussion. Three great hearings have been had as to the feasibility and desirability of the plan. The first of these was in Washington, when experts of the postoffice gave their criticism and favorable opinions. The second was in Chicago with experts of the mail order house of Montgomery Ward & Co., and the third was also in Chicago with experts of Sears, Roebuck & Co. Each of these great and capable witnesses testified unreservedly that the plan proposed and now presented by this bill in Congress was feasible and practicable and promising of immense results in the prosperity of the farmer and the consumer and to the great good of the nation.

It is this measure which the AMERICAN and its kindred newspapers advocate with great heartiness and earnestness before the Sixty-fourth Congress at Washington.

This system is at this time under partial operation under the Postoffice Department. But as it stands today its methods are so primitive and crude that they are entirely inadequate for the ends in view and incapable of making progress. The bill before Congress develops the system now in use with vigor and skill and embodies a system which will develop in wonderful and beneficent fashion the whole marketing system of the agricultural masses of America.

The American people—the whole American people—are to be the recipients in a high degree of the economic benefits which are to follow.

At this time about ninety per cent. of the world's wholesale trade is done through the exhibition of samples which the buyer bears in his mind.

With the system of forms and tags and blanks used by the mail order houses this same method can be applied to the marketing of the farmer and the housekeeper—and never in the world was wholesale business better performed than it is today.

Under the operation of the bill now before Congress the postoffice and the parcel post service will free the farmer from the domination of the trust and from that still more deadly Moloch, the law of chance and chaos. At the same time it will free the consumer from the irksome impediments in the pathway of the law of legitimate supply and demand.

The fundamentals are so clear, the system so well approved and the results so logically apparent and desirable that the whole common sense and public spirit of Congress should be united to whip this bill speedily into shape and to pass it now as a foundation of national defense and national prosperity for all the people.

More Truth Than Poetry

By James J. Montague

As to Preparedness

ONE of these days, when a thirteen-inch shot tumbles a half dozen skyscrapers down, We'll view with regret (which will help us a lot) The scrambled remains of what once was this town. We'll glance at the bones as they burst in the sky While cold apprehension runs shuddering through us. "We might have prevented all this," we will sigh, (And a great deal of good it will do us!)

ONE of these days, when we waken to see We are suddenly placed in the deuce of a fix, When shells drop around us like nuts off a tree And we run about dodging a shower of bricks, We will sigh as we bark to the sibilant hiss Of the shells, ere they burst at our feet and upset us; "We easily might have prevented all this," (And a lot of our lamenting will get us!)

ONE of the trying pan into the fire! Out of a crisis and into a jam! Chattering out of a snarl of barbarism! Right into the face of a battering ram: Seeing a storm rushing up in the sky, And calmly neglecting to get an umbrella! Trembling to look that perhaps he'll get by— Little rain is a very nice fable!

Absolute Silence from the Bench
Senator Warren's declaration that to draft Hughes into the Presidential race is a crime would get the country more impatient if Mr. Hughes gave any indication of intending it.

They Know Which Side Their Bread Is Buttered On

You never hear of any of the chemists in a Rockefeller laboratory trying to lock that perhaps he'll get by— Little rain is a very nice fable!

Ahead of the Game

Newton P. Baker has come from Cleveland and "Trix Speaker" has gone to Cleveland, and Cleveland has no complaint whatever against the swap.

A Matter of Opinion

The President says that Princeton is the one place in the entire Union where he cannot deliver a speech. But, according to Jim Mann, the House of Representatives is another.

Faltering Faith

The New York World wants the Republicans to nominate Wilson, having concluded, unanimously, that the Democrats haven't much of a chance of winning in November.

Not So Blind, Eye

Not far from the White House is a street sign reading, "Men Wanted for the United States Army." But Mr. Wilson usually goes about town in a closed limousine.

The Sense of Proportion

By Charles F. Thwing

President of Western Reserve University

THE sense of proportion is the appreciation of what is worth while. It represents regarding great things as great, and small things as small. It is a judgment made a sort of character.

The sense of proportion is to be applied to several elements in American life. One field of application relates to the relationship of labor and leisure. Leisure with-out labor is idleness; labor without leisure is drudgery. Both are bad. Work with some leisure is constructive, self-appreciation, usefulness. Leisure with work is recreation, happiness, restfulness. The proportion is to be maintained. The same sense of proportion is to be applied to wealth and to competence. The struggle for wealth is not so much a struggle for money as it is a struggle for power. Many great men do not care for wealth, some love fame, others love power.

The mere desire for material acquisition is lowering. The man who has passed out of life and literature, but the community is becoming keenly sensitive to the power of money.

It costs more men too much. It costs more men friendship, large appreciations, noble relationships and breadth of living. It costs some men home.

The answer lies. Because they are the victims of broadcast cruelty and ill treatment; because they are weak and defenseless; because religious people need to have their consciences quickened and educated; because the churches should not lag behind in the world-wide and successful campaign which is being waged to introduce practical humanity into human conduct.

The world needs the clergy, but still more the clergy need the world. The church will be largely what its pastors and leaders make it. Let them march at the head of the world-wide reform and the people will give them cordial support and welcome.

Many brilliant clergymen have come late in this good work. Rev. Dr. Sirus Richardson, pastor of the First Congregational Church, of Nashua, New Hampshire, says in a sermon:

"What does cruelty to animals imply in those who practice it? Sometimes it implies dense ignorance. A starvation diet does not mean economy. The source of strength is vitality. Abuse is the worst kind of economy. Cruelty does infinitely harm. Cruelty to animals implies a hard heart. Neglect-

Of course money never loves company that is not equally miserable. We always hate to see a pretty girl wasting beauty on a small boy.

The worm will sometimes turn, but the human does not seldom wiggle. In the case of great men genius and common sense go hand in hand. Charlie will keep off a good many diseases—and your friends, too. Attempts to make hay the day before the sun shows are as apt to be followed as those of the meteorologist.

In-Shoots

The small boy always imagines that Pa and Ma had a dull time when they were young.

Those decayed branches generally boast the londest about their family tree.

When marrying to spite some one it is difficult to spite the right one.

It is to be regretted that the mirror never shows us what everybody else can see.

Occasionally we speak well of the dead where it really no account for it.

Humane Sunday Promises Great Results

Kindness-to-Animals Week to Be Followed by Sabbath Devoted to Consideration of Plans for Better Treatment of Children and Dumb Beasts

By Ella Wheeler Wilcox

Copyright, 1916, New Century.

FROM the president of the Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals and the American Humane Education Society, comes the following letter:

"I think you will be glad to know that our society began more than a year ago to interest the United States Army in our work, and they are co-operating with us now, and in their training schools are giving instructions in the claims of animal life upon mankind, and many of their workers are including it as a part of one's religious duty.

"We also, through correspondence with the superintendent of the United States Army in India have from him the promise that it shall be remembered in all their work there, and we have sent him money for such literature as is deemed necessary to be used in that country.

"The 'Kind to Animals Week,' was quite generally observed last Spring throughout the United States and a good deal was done toward securing an 'Animal Sunday.'

Humane Sunday this year comes on May 21.

The object of this observance is for the purpose of securing one Sunday in the year to be set apart for special service calling attention to the need for protection for suffering and helpless children, and also unfortunate animals; the same is to be supplemented by a work of special observances designed to advance the cause of animal protection and universal kindness.

Aid of Clergy Needed

The American Humane Association has approved of the plan that the Kind to Animals Week shall precede Humane Sunday, which would thus become the climax of this humane celebration each year.

In order that Humane Sunday shall be generally observed it is necessary to secure the cooperation of clergymen of all denominations.

It has been asked why should one Sunday in the year be devoted to the special consideration of mercy and kindness in the treatment of God's helpless creatures—suffering little children and abused animals?

The answer lies. Because they are the victims of broadcast cruelty and ill treatment; because they are weak and defenseless; because religious people need to have their consciences quickened and educated; because the churches should not lag behind in the world-wide and successful campaign which is being waged to introduce practical humanity into human conduct.

The world needs the clergy, but still more the clergy need the world. The church will be largely what its pastors and leaders make it. Let them march at the head of the world-wide reform and the people will give them cordial support and welcome.

Many brilliant clergymen have come late in this good work. Rev. Dr. Sirus Richardson, pastor of the First Congregational Church, of Nashua, New Hampshire, says in a sermon:

"What does cruelty to animals imply in those who practice it? Sometimes it implies dense ignorance. A starvation diet does not mean economy. The source of strength is vitality. Abuse is the worst kind of economy. Cruelty does infinitely harm. Cruelty to animals implies a hard heart. Neglect-

And starved cattle are positive proof of wicked owners. During recent years, humane treatment of the lower orders of life has been taught in many schools not only for the sake of the animals, but also to raise the tone of morals on the part of the pupils."

The Rev. Edward Niles, pastor Second Presbyterian Church, Baltimore, Md., says:

"The welfare of the lower animal world is our sacred trust. When we violate our trust we must hurt ourselves, and bring inevitable damage upon our heads. The man who kills a horse kills brutality into himself. In the words of Lehigh Union, 'When we injure animals for sport, we injure our own humanity.' Cruelty is, indeed, the Devil's earmark; abolishment, whoever inflicts or abets it. Balaam's ass would never have guessed that a prophet of God struck him, thus the animal that has dealings with you know that you are a Christian."

For the benefit of clergymen who may wish to prepare sermons for Animal Sunday, the American Humane Association, of Albany, New York, has prepared the following:
